Description :

Prsentation de l'diteur1676, Paris, France. When a dismembered head is found in the home of Madame de Lionne, the Chief Inspector of Police, Guillaume Varenne, is summoned to investigate. What at first appears to be a simple case of murder evolves quickly into something infinitely more sinister. Before long the tentacles of his enquiry begin to reach out to the palace of Versailles and into the court of Louis XIV. An evil conspiracy is about to be revealed and there are those within the government who will stop at nothing to prevent him from completing his investigation. Rob Marsh is the author of over 30 published books - both fiction and non-fiction. His previous novel, Beasts of Prey (Human Rousseau) was published to much critical acclaim and was long-listed for the Sunday Times fiction award, South Africa's foremost literary prize. Présentation de l'auteur 1676, Paris, France.
